Linden Street Bakery Newsletter, November 2026

The painted window on Linden Street is finished. Mark Petrov, an architect at the studio across the river, drew the design: a large spaniel holding a loaf of rye bread. Lena Ivanova, who teaches chemistry at the secondary school on the hill, brought eight of her students to help with the paint.

The neighbourhood council liked the window so much that it started a small sketching club for local residents. The club meets on Thursday evenings in the back room of the bakery. Coffee and the last rolls of the day are free for members.

Next month the club plans to paint the window of the shoe repair shop. Everyone is welcome; bring a pencil and a warm jacket.

Sketching club: mentors and mentees
